

Answers to your frequently asked questions...

Expert Advice from
Chief Coin Buyer Jim Reardon

- Q. My aunt left me her collection, and I don't know anything about coins. I think I want to sell. How do I know who to trust?
- A. To ensure you're dealing with a reputable company, check their credentials. Businesses with memberships in established organizations like the American Numismatic Association have proven track records of reliability with collectors.
- Q. I inherited a collection and it's not organized at all. Where do I begin?
- A. Start by taking a quick inventory of what you have. Then call, fax or e-mail your list to an established dealer, like Littleton. They should promptly respond and indicate if they are interested in purchasing your collection.
- Q. I don't live near Littleton, and am not able to travel. How can I get a fair appraisal on my collection?
- A. For over half a century, Littleton has provided accurate appraisals and top-dollar pricing to collectors around the nation. There is no need to leave your home. Many collectors simply send their coins via insured U.S. mail.
- Q. Is it really safe to send my coins and paper money through the mail?
- A. Believe it or not, sending insured parcels via the U.S. Postal Service is one of safest ways to ship. Littleton ships nearly all of its products this way.

Real-Life Story...

One family discovered this old $20 bill was rare, and a buyer paid $242,000 to get it!

When a New England family discovered an old $20 bill among their possessions, they contacted local dealers who offered them over $1,000 for it. Fortunately, they also contacted Littleton Coin Company. President David Sundman saw the note and exclaimed, “That's a rare note!” The $20 bill turned out to be the extremely rare 1863 Gold Certificate – one of only 6 known to exist. With Littleton's advice in directing the note to the right venue, this rare Gold Certificate sold for $242,000! Do you have a fortune in your attic?

Coins in the Mail?

Hundreds of thousands of collectors send their coins to us through the mail each year. Even one of the world's most famous jewels, the Hope Diamond, was sent by mail to the Smithsonian Institution. No armored trucks and no armed guards – simply registered and insured U.S. mail. That's confidence! From rare coins to high-end paper money, all of our products are shipped via the U.S. Postal Service. There's no better way!
